

John S. Lander } In the Sup. Court. of Ills
s } Southern Division
Alvan Keadler }

The only question in this case is whether the title derived from the Patent to John L. Bogardus is sufficient to base the Statute of Limitation of 1835, providing for cases in which the holder of a connected title in law or equity and entitled of record from this State or the United States &c. shall have possession of the premises by actual residence for seven years next before the Commencement of the suit - The plaintiff in this suit having shown actual residence for the requisite period & has shown a title derived from John L. Bogardus who received a Patent for the said subject & the claims of all persons claiming under the act of 3^d March 1833, under which act the defendant in error has attempted to show title - It is contended on part of plaintiff in error that the conveyance by Governor D. Bogardus was a good conveyance of the whole of the greater section until some claim was interposed by the claimants under and act of B. March 1833. & upon is the much other case of Bryan & Rouse vs. Forsyth decided in Sup. Court of the U.

States at Dec 2, 1856 -
